

Lake Michigan

Lake Michigan is the only one of the five Great Lakes entirely located within the borders of the United States. The other four share borders with Canada. That makes it the largest freshwater lake in the country. Its shores along the western coast of Michigan are a huge draw for tourism, due largely in part to its scenic beauty and the number of recreational options it offers. Some of the best Michigan hiking and Michigan camping can be found around the lake, fishing charters are popular from Spring to early Fall as anglers look to draw off the charter companies' knowledge of the waters. Lake Michigan offers some of the best chances to catch steelhead, coho and chinook salmon, perch, rainbow, lake and brown trout, smallmouth and largemouth bass, and the occasional walleye. Lake Michigan jet ski rental companies abound up the Michigan coast, and give vacationers a great way to have fun on the open waters. Families, tourists, and locals alike flock to the Lake Michigan beaches in the summer for their white, crystal sand, picturesque dunes and charming beachtowns. A great getaway idea is staying at a Michigan bed and breakfast in one of these towns.

Lake Michigan charters are a fisherman's dream, and you'll find a number of quality charter companies to help you add this Michigan fishing experience to your vacation agenda. Just pack some Dramamine if you are not sure about motion sickness. Other than that, you can leave the rest to the captain and his crew. Even if you have your own boat and want to go out on your own, it's wise to hire one of the many Lake Michigan Charters for at least ½ a day. These guys spend a ton of time on the water and know where the best spots are, as well as what equipment to use. Also, make sure you hire a licensed charter, and you can check with The Michigan Charter Boat Association for a list of licensed charters. If charter fishing on your Michigan vacation is just part of the plan, you might consider companies near charming vacation towns, like Muskegon, or Traverse City, where you can combine your fishing adventure with the other options for things to do. Lake Michigan charter fishing is a great idea for your family vacation, group party, or corporate outing.

If fishing just isn't your thing, don't worry, there are plenty of other ways to enjoy Lake Michigan. Swimming is obviously one of them, but you should try a Lake Michigan jet ski rental company for the joy of cruising in freedom. Without having to worry about sharks, or other dangerous water creatures, you can rest assured and open up the throttle and make some waves. If you want some exercise, you can rent a paddle boat or kayak and work on toning those arms and legs. In Holland, Michigan, you can enjoy the beautiful view back to land from a unique perspective and cruise up close to the big, Red Lighthouse. Out on Lake Michigan, you feel like you're out on the ocean, and you might try stopping along the beach for a picnic, or to climb some sand dunes. Either way, your Lake Michigan jet ski rental instructor will teach you all you need to know, and they take care of the wetsuits, life jackets and fuel. You just focus on having fun.

When you think of hitting the beach, you might first think of Florida. But don't pass a chance to head to the beautiful Lake Michigan beaches along western Michigan. Michigan beachtowns offer miles of sandy beaches, stunning views of towering dunes, gorgeous sunsets, exciting events and attractions, and a relaxing and comfortable experience. Lake Michigan beaches are already popular with tourists, and they make a great backdrop for those looking to plan a Michigan wedding. Try Saugatuck's Oval Beach, rated by Conde Nast's Traveler Magazine as one of the top 25 beaches in the world. Yes, the world. Towns up and down the Michigan coast, like South Haven and Muskegon, are staking their claim among some of the top vacation getaways. Visit the Lake Michigan beaches, and you'll understand why